Introduction

Welcome to Fabulous Las Vegas, Nevada!

At one time considered a famed resort exclusively for the purpose of entertainment and gaming, Las Vegas has developed into a positive community adapting to the needs of all family life. With its growing economy, low overall taxes, and favorable cost of living, the population of Clark County continues to climb by an average of 6,000 each month. According to the 2010 Census figures, the population in Clark County is 1,951,269 people. Clark County includes the cities of Las Vegas, Boulder City, Henderson, Mesquite and North Las Vegas, and is the most populated county in Nevada.

History

In the early 1700's, Spanish traders en route to Los Angeles along the Spanish Trail seek a route that passes through the then-unexplored Las Vegas Valley. The Spaniards refer to the route as "jornada de muerte," journey of death. A young scout named Rafael Rivera is the first person of European ancestry to look upon the valley. His discovery of a valley with abundant wild grasses growing and a plentiful water supply reduces the journey by several days. The valley is named Las Vegas, Spanish for "The Meadows."

Brigham Young assigns 30 Mormon missionaries in 1855 to build a fort in the Las Vegas valley. The fort is the first non-Indian settlement in the region and is still located on the corner of Washington Avenue and Las Vegas Boulevard. Their primary purpose is to teach the Paiute Indians farming techniques. The Paiutes reject the teachings and occasionally raid the fort.

The discovery of minerals, including precious metals, leads to the beginning of the mining industry.

The completion of the main railway in the late 1800s, linking Southern California with Salt Lake City, establishes Las Vegas as a railroad town. The availability of water makes Las Vegas an ideal refueling point and rest stop. The railroad is the principal industry in Las Vegas for the next 25 years.

The State Land Act of 1885 offers sections of land at $1.25 per acre. Farmers move in and agriculture becomes the dominant industry for the next 20 years.

Las Vegas is founded as a city on May 15, 1905.

Las Vegas becomes an incorporated city and adopts its first charter on March 16th. At the time of incorporation, the city encompasses 19.18 square miles and has approximately 800 inhabitants, less than one percent of the state's total population. Clark County has a population of 3,321.

On March 19, 1911, gambling is legalized in the State of Nevada. One month later, the city issues six gambling licenses. Beginning in 1931, the construction of Hoover Dam brings an influx of construction workers, which starts a population boom and gives the Valley's economy, which was in the grips of the Great Depression, a needed boost.

The outbreak of World War II brings the defense industry to the valley. The isolated location, along with plentiful water and inexpensive energy, makes Las Vegas an ideal site for military and defense-related industries. The site for Nellis Air Force Base is located in the northeast, and the Basic Management Complex, providers of raw materials, is located in the southeastern suburb of Henderson. The defense industry continues to employ a significant number of valley residents.

In 1945, following World War II, lavishly decorated resort hotels and gambling casinos offering top-name entertainment come into existence. Tourism and entertainment take over as the largest employer in the valley.

In 1969, Elvis Presley opens at the International Hotel, now known as the Las Vegas Hilton.

Starting in the mid-1980s, a period of unprecedented growth begins. Annual population increases averaging nearly seven percent causes the city's population to almost double between 1985 and 1995, increasing from 186,380 to 368,360. Clark County's population increases from 562,280 to 1,036,180.

The US Census reports the population of Las Vegas is 552,539 over a land area of 113 square miles. There are over 500 churches and synagogues, 799 acres of parks, 7 television stations and 12 radio stations (4 AM and 8 FM). Las Vegas is the largest metropolitan city in the U.S. that was founded in the 20th century.

The city of Las Vegas celebrated its 100th birthday on May 15, 2005. The events celebrated the 1905 auction in which 110 acres of downtown Las Vegas laid the foundation for the city we know today. The celebration began on December 31, 2004, and lasted throughout 2005.

CLIMATE

While the climate is generally very pleasant during the fall, winter, and spring, the four seasons are actually well defined in the Las Vegas Valley — although different from the traditional view of seasonal variation. During the summer months of June through August, temperatures can climb into the 100s and humidity can reach the 90s, though rarely. The lows average in the 70s.

While a dry heat dominates, humidity can increase significantly for several weeks each summer in association with a moist “monsoonal flow” from the south, typically during July and August. Summers are long and have hot days and warm nights with accompanying mild winds that occur especially during drought years. Average annual precipitation is about 4.5 inches.

Winters are typically mild and pleasant, though problematic windstorms are common during the late winter months and throughout the spring months. The predominant wind direction generally occurs from the southwest. Afternoon temperatures average near 60 degrees and skies are mostly clear.

Pacific storms occasionally produce rainfall in the Las Vegas Valley, but in general, the Sierra Nevada Mountains, which are located in eastern California, and the Spring Mountains, to the west of the Las Vegas Valley, act as an effective moisture barrier.

MOVING TO LAS VEGAS

People moving across the country will likely require the services of a moving company. Those moving to Las Vegas from nearby locations might want to consider moving themselves.

If you decide to use a moving company, ask for references. Get more than one price quote and get a written contract before making a deposit.

Most reputable companies provide free estimates based on the length of the move and the weight of the items to be transported. There are two kinds of estimates: binding and nonbinding. A binding estimate describes, in exact detail, the shipment and all associated services that will be provided. This type of estimate limits charges to the stated amount. A nonbinding estimate approximates cost. Movers may not charge for providing a nonbinding estimate, but the final bill can be more than the estimate, not to exceed 10 percent.

A FEW POINTS TO REMEMBER

- Although a moving company provides liability insurance on items it moves by the pound, it might be wise to purchase additional insurance.
- Before a moving company begins work, take an inventory of belongings, even if the company promises to do one for you. Be sure to note scratches and other blemishes that will help verify a damage claim if it becomes necessary. If the company does its own inventory, check it carefully against a personal inventory before signing anything.

- Do not use heavy containers to pack belongings. Use wardrobe space wisely by packing off-season garments in regular boxes.
- Consider mailing books to your new address. Post office book rates are less than that of some moving companies.
- Remember that movers are trained professionals, and there is less chance of damage if they do the packing. Movers usually can pack in one day.
- Be present at your new home when the movers are scheduled to arrive. If no one is home, belongings will go into storage, usually for an extra fee. The moving company will usually expect payment before unloading, unless other arrangements are outlined in your contract.

TEMPORARY STORAGE

Temporary storage is available throughout Las Vegas. When calling a storage facility, be sure to check on security arrangements at specific storage units, liability for loss or damage and availability of units. List the contents of boxes on all four sides and number the boxes. Use high-quality locks, and keep a list of what you store to ensure security and to make it easier to access items when you need them.

FORWARDING MAIL

A month or two before leaving your old home, ask the local U.S. Post Office for a change-of-address kit. This will allow you to notify businesses, magazines and creditors of your new address. Also, fill out a change-of-address form for the postmaster, providing the effective date when forwarding should begin. Only first-class mail can be forwarded.

Forwarding mail in advance reduces the risk of identity theft. With so much personal information being sent through the mail, forwarding early can help cut down on identity theft problems down the road.

DRIVER'S LICENSE

New residents have 30 days to obtain a Nevada driver's license. In order to obtain a license, you must pay a $22.00 fee; the fee is $17.00 for those 65 and older. All applicants must take a vision test. Other tests will be waived if you are 25 years old or older and have no special restrictions; your out-of-state license is valid and you are applying for the same class of license; and/or you have no more than two moving violations and no suspensions, revocations, cancellations, or denials in the past four years. If you do not meet these requirements, you will have to take a written test and possibly a skills test.

All license applications are checked through the national Problem Driver Pointer System. Nevada does not automatically transfer all motorcycle endorsements. Commercial driver's licenses can be transferred at Full Service Offices if the driver meets the above requirements and has a current DOT (Department of Transportation) physical form. Make sure that you bring proof of your Social Security card and proof of your name and age (e.g., certified copy of birth certificate, passport, or immigration document).

INSURANCE REQUIREMENTS

In Nevada, vehicle owners are required to carry liability insurance. The minimum requirements are $15,000 bodily injury, $30,000 per person per accident, and $10,000 property damage. Proof of insurance must be kept in the vehicle at all times.

ESTABLISHING UTILITY SERVICE

When setting up utility service in Las Vegas, be prepared to supply the following information:

- address of former utility company and letter of credit or deposit
- name and identification information of person with whom you live
- place of employment
- driver's license number
- Social Security number
- home phone number and a daytime phone number where you and your spouse may be reached

Purchase a Home in Las Vegas

Knowing what to look for when purchasing a home in Las Vegas will go a long way in making the home-buying process fun, exciting and problem-free.

One of the real estate agent's primary roles is to help the potential homeowner create the best team. To purchase a home, a potential homeowner typically will need a real estate agent, a mortgage company, title company, various inspectors, an insurance company and, depending on the transaction, an attorney.

HOME BUYERS SHOULD EXPECT THE AGENT TO:

- Explain how the property tax system in Nevada works
- Help the buyer create a budget
- Help determine whether to purchase a new home or a resale home
- Show potential homeowners neighborhoods and homes within their price range
- Negotiate the best possible price for the home
- Explain the contract
- Be present with the potential homeowner for all inspections
- Expedite the paperwork between all parties involved.

Las Vegas is known for its reasonable home prices, and most people who move here are happily surprised to find they can afford a home.

Senior and Retirement Living

Las Vegas provides outstanding recreational activities for all individuals, including seniors. Whether your activity of choice is a slow hike through the mountains, a bike ride against the scenic backdrop, or boating, hunting or fishing in the Lake Mead recreation area, Las Vegas has got you covered. In addition, golfing enthusiasts can take advantage of Southern Nevada's many public and private golf courses.

If taking tours is more of interest, Las Vegas is within close proximity to many breathtaking landmark attractions, such as the Grand Canyon and Hoover Dam. Since Las Vegas is home to many of the world's largest casinos, the area is a gaming paradise. In addition, the hotel resorts offer entertainment and attractions that people travel across the world to see.

The diverse and active lifestyle of Southern Nevada's senior population is reflected in the many types of senior living communities located across the region. Living arrangements run the gamut from active adult communities and independent living communities to assisted-living housing and continuing care retirement facilities.

With "baby-boomers" hitting retirement age and with more and more people retiring in their early 50s, active adult communities are becoming popular across the country. These communities are generally traditional neighborhoods. Many of these communities offer golf courses, a community center, fitness facilities and nearby churches, shopping, health care facilities and entertainment. Most of these communities do not accept children. A typical requirement is that one of the adults living in the house has to be 55 years of age or older.

Education and Child Care

EDUCATION

With a wide variety of educational options offered in Southern Nevada, residents willingly embrace the excitement of learning — whether it's elementary or graduate education. This section provides an overview of the city's educational institutions, including valuable information such as profiles of school programs, private school data and even an immunization chart to make sure Las Vegas' youngest students get a healthy start in life.

Las Vegas is growing — there is no doubt about it. There are more than 20 colleges and universities spread out across the Las Vegas Valley offering undergraduate and graduate programs in hundreds of disciplines. These institutions provide easy access for people of all ages who want to continue their educational pursuits.

In addition, the area offers a large selection of vocational, technical and specialized schools that offer specific training in a host of career programs such as health care, fitness, gaming, air conditioning, fine arts, cosmetology and real estate.

For newcomers who are already set in a career path, continuing education and leisure time educational options are available at most of the area's colleges and universities, as well as at specialized schools and community centers across the region.

The city's public school system is addressing the educational needs of the city's young population. As the 5th largest school district in the nation, the Clark County School District serves more than 303,448 students.

To accommodate growth for the 2005-2006 school year, the school district added 11 new schools. New construction added seven elementary schools, three middle schools and one high school to the area.

CHILD CARE

Choosing a reliable and nurturing child care provider is at the top of the list of important decisions to make when parents who need these services move to a new community. In the Las Vegas area, child care providers must be licensed.

The following governmental agencies provide licensing services for child care providers, as well as referral listings for parents and guardians. These referrals do not constitute an endorsement of the facilities listed. Parents are encouraged to make personal visits and ask many questions before selecting a facility for their child.

If a person who is not a parent, grandparent, or guardian cares for even one child in the unincorporated areas of Clark County, that person must be licensed. There are hundreds of licensed child care providers in the county.

The ABCs of Choosing a School

Here are some tips for learning more about southern Nevada schools:

WEBSITES

One way to learn more about a school is to contact the school district by phone or by visiting the many websites now available. A website is a valuable source of information, providing school district statistics and information on individual schools.

WORD OF MOUTH

A valuable but often overlooked way to locate a new school is old-fashioned word of mouth. Colleagues already established in Las Vegas can be helpful. Your real estate agent, neighbors, relatives and friends are also good sources of information.

PERSONAL VISITS

If the school that you are investigating sounds promising, schedule a visit. Be prepared to follow up with more interviews and an evaluation for your child. If possible, try to visit a prospective school while the school term is still in session.

Bring a written list of questions. Inquire about student-teacher ratios, computer availability, extracurricular activities, multilingual programs and gifted programs. Ask how students are tested and graded, how these results are reported and about the amount of parental participation in the school.

PERSONAL PERCEPTIONS

After all of your research, you still have to balance where you wish to live, the commuting distance from home to work and your “gut feelings” about the schools you have seen. Your family’s ability to readily adapt to a move and to find happiness in a new environment may depend, in part, on how happy your children are in their new school.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Nevada law requires school attendance for all children who are between the ages of 7 and 17. A child must be five years old on or before September 30 to attend kindergarten, which is part of the regular school program. A child must be six years old on or before September 30 to enter first grade.

Participation and proficiency levels in several of the state-required tests are used as the primary indicators of school, district and state-level academic achievement. State laws require that a child must attend a state-approved kindergarten program or take a developmental assessment test to enter first grade. There are no exceptions to the age requirement except for students who became residents of Nevada after they completed kindergarten or first grade in another state.

The state of Nevada’s system for assessing students is the Nevada Proficiency Examination Program. The program consists of several different tests taken by students enrolled in public schools in specific grades and specific programs.

School accountability reports contain detailed information about each school in Nevada. These reports are prepared annually in compliance with the federal No Child Left Behind Act requiring all Nevada school districts to inform citizens about the performance of local schools. Schools use these reports to develop academic plans to improve student achievement.

www.ccsd.net

Located in one of the fastest growing areas in the country, the district operates one of the nation’s largest school construction and modernization programs. Approximately $3.5 billion is being spent through 2008 to build new schools and improve existing ones.

Programs available to meet the diverse educational needs of students include:

- Magnet schools and programs: Areas of interest include math and science, fine and performing arts, technology, tourism and travel, aerospace and aviation, international studies, law preparatory and medical professions.

The ABCs of Choosing a School

- Special education: Direct and support services are provided for students with disabilities who are 3-21 years old. Schools that provide these services team up with families to offer quality learning experiences for students with disabilities and to prepare these students for life after school. A full range of options is available at neighborhood schools to meet students' needs.
- Accelerated/honors programs: A gifted and talented education program is offered in the third through fifth grades. High schools offer honor programs, advanced placement courses and advanced diplomas. Course offerings are designed to provide a challenging curriculum for students.
- Other programs/outside resources: The district offers transitional bilingual and English as a second language programs, as well as numerous alternative education options for high school students. The district also uses outside resources to meet student needs through such programs as Safe and Drug Free Schools, School-to-Careers and Math and Science Enhancement.

Parents are encouraged to be involved in their child's education at all grade levels. Parents may assist in classrooms or participate in parent organizations, booster clubs and regional committees.

HOME SCHOOLING

Home schooling offers parents another option in educating their children. The Nevada State Board of Education has approved more than 30 correspondence programs for parents to choose from when considering home schooling their children.

For information about Nevada laws and guidelines for home schooling, call the Nevada Department of Education's home school consultant at 702.799.8630 ext. 316, or view the state home schooling website at www.doe.nv.gov/SD_Homeschooling.htm.

Parents must file a Notice of Intent to Homeschool form, as well as provide evidence that the child is enrolled in an approved correspondence program, with the Clark County School District. To contact the school district regarding home schooling, call 702.799.8630 ext. 316.

PRIVATE/PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS

The Las Vegas metropolitan area is home to more than 100 private schools.

VOCATIONAL & TECHNICAL SCHOOLS

A wealth of Las Vegas area schools offer occupational training at varying levels. Many of these schools offer scheduled payment plans, government loans, grants and Veterans Affairs benefits to make training more accessible.

Las Vegas has a total of 15 acute care hospitals as well as several rehabilitation and specialty hospitals, satellite offices and quick-care facilities. All medical procedures can be performed locally.

The Clark County Health District, one of the largest local public health districts in the nation, serves a population of 1.7 million, representing 70 percent of Nevada's population. Public health services are available to everyone, regardless of income.

Medical and health care education is also plentiful in the Las Vegas area, and the affiliation of academic institutions with health care providers in the region contributes to the area's quality patient care.

FINDING A DOCTOR

With thousands of physicians in the Las Vegas area, finding the right one for your family can be quite a challenge.

If your employer offers health insurance, visit your company's human resources office. Your employer can usually provide you with literature about hospitals and doctors that will accept the company's insurance.

When searching for a physician, make sure the doctor is board-certified. All U.S. board-certified physicians are listed with the American Board of Medical Specialties (www.abms.org) or call (866) 275-2267. The American Medical Association provides information about U.S. licensed physicians at www.ama-assn.org.

Las Vegas/Clark County Library District

The Las Vegas/Clark County Library District operates 25 branches and maintains 2.7 million items for check out, including the latest best sellers, magazines, DVDs, videos, CDs and books on tape.

A variety of programs and special events take place at the library, including author visits, film festivals, music, dance and drama. Six of the library's urban libraries have performing arts centers.

The library was named The Gale/Library Journal's "Library of the Year" for 2003. The award honors a North American library for its demonstrated innovation in service to the community and best use of public funds.

Computers are available at all branches and offer word processing software and access to the Internet. Five Microcomputer Centers provide free computer classes on subjects ranging from word processing and spreadsheet applications to desktop publishing programs. The "Just for Kids" and "Teen Zone" on the library's website provide book lists, activity information, story time schedules and more. Teens and children who need help with schoolwork can access the Live Homework Help program, a free on-line tutoring service for students in the fourth through 12th grades.

For information, locations and hours, visit the Las Vegas/Clark County Library District's website at www.lvccld.org.

BOULDER CITY LIBRARY

Located in the new Adams Boulevard Community Park Complex, the Boulder City Library offers a large collection of books for adults, teens and children. The library has audio books, CDs, large print books, periodicals, videos, non-circulating reference books and Spanish books. The Boulder City Library website is www.bclibrary.org.

HENDERSON DISTRICT PUBLIC LIBRARIES

Henderson District libraries provide a large selection of books, special events and programs for people of all ages.

Special programs include the Pittman Cybrary, which provides free computer training to young people in the third through eighth grades. Other special offerings include homebound, business resource library, Spanish Club, historic Henderson Photos, Henderson Library Book Club, Mystery Reader's Club and Online Book Club. Also available are the Foreign Encounters Film Series, best seller lists, computer literacy classes, e-mail reference service and English as a second language classes. The Henderson District's website is www.hdpl.org.

Recreation and Entertainment

Las Vegas is known for many things — from world-famous resorts, shopping and entertainment, to breathtaking views, warm weather and outstanding quality of life. Las Vegas has acquired another well-known quality by evolving into one of the most prestigious fine dining meccas in the United States.

DINING

Some of the country’s most famous chefs have opened restaurants along the resort corridor that compare favorably with the best New York and Los Angeles have to offer.

In addition to the resort areas, everywhere you look across the Las Vegas Valley you’ll find numerous restaurants, upscale eateries, bistros, steak houses, cafés and sandwich shops.

While the buffets that made Las Vegas famous are still around, thousands of dining options are available. From ethnic restaurants to neighborhood eateries and all the most familiar fast-food franchises - there’s something for everyone’s taste.

VISUAL ARTS

Across the city, numerous galleries and museums will tickle the fancy of art and history buffs. Street fairs that offer a combination of diversion arts, entertainment and social time are also crowd favorites.

Located at the Bellagio Hotel and Casino, Bellagio Gallery of Fine Art (BGFA) is one of Las Vegas’ premier exhibition spots. The gallery presents world-class exhibitions of art and objects drawn from internationally known museums and private collections. Past exhibitions have included Monet, Andy Warhol and Alexander Calder. In addition to the BGFA, the hotel lobby’s ceiling is adorned with a Dale Chihuly sculpture, made exclusively for Bellagio. You can also dine among an extensive collection of original Picasso artworks at the Picasso restaurant.

PERFORMING ARTS AND CULTURE

The Smith Center for the Performing Arts and Symphony Park

The Las Vegas Performing Arts Center Foundation, in partnership with the city of Las Vegas, developed The Smith Center for the Performing Arts, which opened on March 10, 2012.

Centrally located in downtown's 61-acre Symphony Park, The Smith Center sits on nearly five acres adjacent to the Cleveland Clinic Lou Ruvo Center for Brain Health, which is situated at the corner of Bonneville Avenue and Grand Central Parkway. The five-acre cultural campus features three performance spaces: the 2,050-seat main hall, a 300-seat Cabaret Jazz club and the 200-seat Troesh Studio Theatre. In addition, a park, which is privately owned but accessible to the public, can be used for outdoor concerts, festivals, community events and private gatherings. The campus is also home to the Discovery Children's Museum and is home to the Las Vegas Philharmonic and Nevada Ballet Theatre. The complex offers a blend of performances by local arts groups, as well as first-run touring attractions.

Recreational opportunities abound in Southern Nevada. Whether you're looking for an exciting adventure or a scenic path to stroll down, you'll find it here. Within a short distance of Las Vegas, adventure seekers can go white water rafting, snow skiing, snowboarding, skydiving, horseback riding and kayaking, or they can skirt across the desert on a variety of motor vehicles. Via land, sea and air, area travel and tour operators offer the young at heart breathtaking expeditions to the Grand Canyon, Hoover Dam, Lake Mead and other havens of natural and man-made beauty.

A host of traditional activities — golfing, tennis, swimming, fishing, camping, sightseeing cruises and photographic tours — are also available in the Las Vegas Valley. College sports teams, Arena League football, Minor League baseball, a professional hockey team, a professional rodeo competition and professional boxing are big draws for those who prefer spectator sports. Here is a list of various leisure activities and their contact information:

GOLF COURSES AND SERVICES

Southern Nevada is home to a number of championship golf courses. The City of Las Vegas has approximately 50 public and private courses, and the City of Henderson has a growing number as well. In fact, the Las Vegas Valley is developing several new home communities, providing residents with easy access to private country clubs and golf courses. For the latest in golfing news in Las Vegas, go to www.lvrj.com/golf.

RELIGIOUS ORGANIZATIONS/CHURCHES

Las Vegas has numerous places of worship for a multitude of religions. In addition to contacting churches directly, residents can call upon religious organizations to gain insight into the many places of worship that exist in the city.
